What is this product?

Type: UCITS
Term: There is no fixed term for this Sub-Fund.
Objectives: The investment objective of the Sub-Fund is to provide long-term capital growth. The Sub-Fund may seek to achieve this investment objective by investing in Equity Instruments, Money Market Instruments and/or Debt Instruments, and through the use of Financial Derivative Instruments.The Sub-Fund will select its equity investments through a quantitive factor based analysis which will consider one or more factors to determine specific investments to acquire or gain an exposure to. In addition to the use of derivatives for investment purposes, the Sub-Fund may also use derivatives for efficient portfolio management, hedging and/or risk reduction. The recommended holding period has been selected as the link between the risk and the portential returns of the Sub-Fund and can be fully appreicated only over the recommended holding period. Benchmark Information: The Sub-Fund is actively managed. The Manger, considering the degree of representativeness of hte underlying markets and their liquidity, strategically selects a benchmark (the "Benchmark") appropriate to the Sub-Fund's investment policies, which is used as basis for the value-at risk ("VaR") calculations. The selected Benchmark is MSCI Europe Index. The Sub-Fund does not aim to track or replicate the performance of the Benchmark and therefore investors should be aware that the Sub-Fund may underperform the Benchmark. There can be no guarantee that the investment objective will actually be attained and investors are explicitly warned that this Sub-Fund is not a capital guaranteed product. Typically, only authorised participants (i.e. brokers) can purchase shares directly from or sell shares directly back to the Sub-Fund. Other investors can purchase and sell shares on the secondary market as described in the prospectus.

- Who understand the risk of losing some or all of the capital invested
- This Sub-Fund may not be appropriate for investors who plan to withdraw their money before the recommended holding period

What happens if Fineco Asset Management DAC is unable to pay out?

If the Manager were to become insolvent, the assets of the Sub-Fund should not be affected because they are held by the Depositary, which is legally required to keep the assets separate from its own assets and those of the Manager. However, if the Depositary were to become insolvent, there may be a financial loss for the Sub-Fund, but this should be minimized because the assets are held separate to the Depositary's own assets. If the Sub-Fund is closed or dissolved, the assets will be sold and the investors will receive a share of the proceeds, which may be more or less than their initial investment. The ICAV is not a guaranteed UCITS and as a result there is no guarantee scheme in place which provides a guaranteed rate of return. The Sub-Fund does not provide compensation or operate a guarantee against any loss in the value of an investment, the funds or any income generated.

How long should I hold it and can I take money out early?

Recommended holding period: 5 years

The recommended holding period of the Sub-Fund is expected to be 5 years. The recommended holding period of 5 years is based on the liquidity profile of the Sub-Fund as well as the risk profile of the underlying assets. In order to sell shares, investors must do so with the assistance of an intermediary (e.g. a stockbroker) and may incur fees for doing so. In addition, investors may receive less than the current Net Asset Value when selling shares. Typically, only authorised participants can purchase shares directly from or sell shares directly back to the Sub-Fund. Shareholders should consult the section of the prospectus entitled "Dealing in shares in the Secondary Market" for details on the limited circumstances where shares purchased on the secondary market may be sold directly back to the Sub-Fund.
