Investment policy

Under normal circumstances, the Sub-Fund invests at least 80% of its assets in equity securities listed in the U.S., primarily focusing on large, well-established firms across various sectors. It typically holds 20–30 positions, with no fewer than 20, and may invest up to 20% of its assets in non-U.S. listed equity securities. The Sub-Fund may invest up to 20% of its assets in non-U.S. companies either via depositary receipts or directly. The Sub-Fund may also hold cash and use derivatives for hedging, including forward FX contracts to manage currency risk for Hedged Share Classes. It may temporarily deviate from these guidelines for liquidity, subscriptions, redemptions, or defensive purposes during unusual market conditions. The Investment Manager has discretion to select securities from the Index Benchmark with different weightings or securities not included in the Index.

Investment strategy

The Sub-Investment Manager aims for long-term capital growth by investing mainly in equities and depositary receipts of companies with strong growth potential in markets aligned to transformational themes. It uses a combination of bottom-up analysis—focusing on fundamentals like competitive advantage, growth prospects, and shareholder value—and top-down thematic investing tied to long-term societal trends. Current themes include artificial intelligence, cloud computing, deglobalisation, digitisation (including e-commerce), and healthcare innovation, though these may evolve over time. Details of the themes are available at www.jhetf.com.

Fund specific risks

Shares can lose value rapidly, and typically involve higher risks than bonds or money market instruments. The value of your investment may fall as a result. Active management techniques that have worked well in normal market conditions could prove ineffective or negative for performance at other times. High exposure to a particular country or geographical region carries a higher level of risk than a more broadly diversified portfolio. When a portfolio is concentrated (has a significant portion of its assets invested in a limited number of holdings), an adverse event impacting even a small number of holdings could create significant volatility or losses. Derivatives may be used with the aim of reducing risk or managing the portfolio more efficiently. However, this introduces other risks, in particular, that a derivative counterparty may not meet its contractual obligations. Securities could become hard to value or to sell at a desired time and price, especially in extreme market conditions when asset prices may be falling, increasing the risk of investment losses. Losses could be incurred if a counterparty became unwilling or unable to meet its obligations, or as a result of failure or delay in operational processes or the failure of a third party provider.

Glossary

Active share
This measures how much a portfolio's holdings differ from its benchmark index. For example, a portfolio with an active share of 60% indicates that 60% of its holdings differ from its benchmark, while the remaining 40% mirror the benchmark.

Price-to-book (P/B) ratio
A financial ratio used to value a company's shares. It is calculated by dividing a company's market value (share price) by the book value of its equity (value of the company's assets on its balance sheet). A P/B value <1 can indicate a potentially undervalued company or a declining business. The higher the P/B ratio, the higher the premium the market is willing to pay for the company above the book (balance sheet) value of its assets.

Price-to-earnings (P/E) ratio
A popular ratio used to value a company's shares, compared to other stocks, or a benchmark index. It is calculated by dividing the current share price by its earnings per share.

Weighted average market cap
The average market capitalisation of a holding, weighted by the size of that position in a portfolio or index.
