- From the stocks in the Nasdaq US Benchmark Index, the largest 500 securities by float-adjusted market capitalisation with a minimum three-month average daily dollar trading volume of $5 million are selected. Multiple share classes of the same issuer are excluded.
- To be eligible for inclusion in the index, companies must have: i. at least $1 billion in cash and short-term investments; ii. a long-term debt-to-market capitalisation ratio of less than 30%; iii. a return on equity of greater than 15%. Eligible securities are then ranked by their three-year revenue percentage growth and three-year cash flow percentage growth.
- The rankings are then combined and the top 50 securities are selected for inclusion in the index. If there are more than 15 securities from any one industry, as determined by the Industry Classification Benchmark classification system, the security with the lowest ranking will be removed and replaced with the next eligible securities (e.g., 51st ranked by growth) from a different industry. This process is repeated until no industry has more than 15 securities.
- The index stocks are equally weighted initially and on each rebalancing effective date.
- The index is rebalanced and reconstituted quarterly.
